Spring Brings a Rush of Alumni Chapter Meetings---New Groups Being Organized

A "MAKE-UP" problem on the last Alumnus forced a continuance to this issue of a portion of the report of the Philadelphia meeting attended by President James at the Adelphia Hotel on Feb. 3. To resume:

The chapter officers in charge of the meeting were W. Rex Snively, '24, president, and Mrs. Ralph W. Walter (Louise Cottle, '26), secretary. Elected to succeed them were: Richard G. Angell, '25, 2-yr., and Mrs. W. Rex Snively, president and secretary, respectively.

An enthusiastic greeting was accorded President James by the men of the Cincinnati chapter upon the occasion of his visit to the Queen City on February 11. The group met at the University Club, at the call of Dr. Gerald H. Castle, '24, chapter president, and had lunch, with Doctor James as their guest of honor. The naming of a committee to assist in establishing helpful contacts with the legislature was an important action taken at the luncheon meeting. In the evening, President James addressed the Cincinnati Schoolmasters' Club following a dinner at Hotel Gibson.

Bringing the activities of the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown up to date finds us with two parties to report. The first, a dinner at Raver's Tavern, Jan. 28, and the second, a benefit bridge at St. John's Episcopal Parish House, on Feb. 25.

The dinner planned by Mrs. Harold B. Doyle (Gertrude Nelson, '13, 2-yr.) and her committee was attended by 50 alumnae. Six South High School girls whom the club president, Gertrude Maier, '23, a South High instructor, hopes to see matriculate in her alma mater, provided music for the event. Winter decorations—snow men for favors and snow scenes for the tables—were in keeping with the frigid temperature of the night.

Ruth Kindler, '29, 2-yr., was chairman of the benefit bridge committee whose Trojan efforts brought out a crowd of 40 tables. The proceeds are used for the club's scholarship fund.

Elizabeth Lowmiller, '26, 2-yr., is in charge of the "galloping teas," which are described elsewhere in this issue and which are immensely popular.

The Youngstown club's final program will be a luncheon at the Mahoning Country Club May 6.

Dean T. C. McCracken, of the College of Education, was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting, Feb.

A Campus Doorway

27, of the Cleveland Bobcat Club (men). The dinner was held as usual at Allendorf's, 1111 Chester Avenue. Another guest of the club was Dean William M. Young, of the College of Applied Science.

Temporarily forsaking their accustomed rendezvous for the Guildhall (Huron Rd., opposite Higbee's), the Bobcat Club will expand its circle to include wives, husbands, and friends of Ohio University alumni at a dinner Mar. 27, to which Dean of Women Irma E. Voigt has been invited as honor guest and speaker.

Approximately 85 persons attended a dinner meeting at the Warner Hotel, Chillicothe, Mar. 10, at which a Ross county alumni chapter was organized. Following spirited singing of university songs, Margaret Flory, '36, A. M. '38, presented the Alumni Secretary as toastmaster, who, in turn introduced the principal speaker, President James.

In an election unique in the annals of chapter affairs "co-officers" were chosen for three of the four principal posts. Alvin F. Jones, '27x, and Mrs. Jones were the choice(s) for president. Josef E. Clark, '35, and Mrs. Clark (Margaret Peters, '37x) were named to the vice-presidency, and Eric MacInnes, '35, and Mrs. MacInnes polled the winning votes for the office of treasurer. Only Ruth E. Hand, '38, the new secretary, will serve without the moral support of a co-partner.

Faithful work upon the part of a committee headed by Miss Hand brought about the birth of the new chapter in the family of Ohio University local groups. Miss Hand's committee included Mrs. Hoyt Parker, Mrs. Gladys Hereford, Hazelle Payne, Helen Walden, Miss Flory, Ralph Wade, Rev. F. J. Batterson, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, Elmer Price, and her sister, Esther Jane Hand.

On March 25, the Pittsburgh chapter, under the leadership of Harry A. Young, '29, president, and Mrs. Charles Low (Kathryn Benjamin, '31), secretary, will hold its annual dinner at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, in Wilkinsburg. Lee T. Sellers, '31, attorney, member of the local group, and a talented speaker, will provide the forensics.

Other chapter meetings, for which dates have been definitely set, with their speakers, are: Chicago, Apr. 1, joint meeting of the alumni of all Ohio colleges, Hotel Sherman (no Ohio U. speaker); Rufus Putnam (Marietta), Apr. 4, President James; Coshocton, Apr. 11, Dr. Einar A. Hansen; Gallipolis, Apr. 13, Dr. H. T. Houf; and Akron, Apr. 29, Prof. A. C. Gubitz.

Chapters from which the announcement of meeting plans may be expected soon are Detroit, Cincinnati, Eastern Ohio (Steubenville), Portsmouth, and Franklin County. Committees in Perry and Belmont counties are planning organization meetings for early dates.

As a result of the assistance and cooperation of friends of the Franklin county chapter, Ohio University's 40-voice men's glee club and the varsity quartet will be presented in a full hour's program as a feature of the annual dinner in Columbus.

A Quarter Century of Change And Progress in Retrospect

By DEAN IRMA E. VOIGT

EDITOR'S NOTE: Twenty-five years of service as Ohio University's first, and only, dean of women were recognized on Sunday, March 5, when leading campus organizations joined in honoring Dean Voigt with a reception in the Men's Union Building. In the receiving line were the presidents of the Pan-Hellenic Council, Mortarboard, Phoenix, Y.W.C.A., W.A.A., Women's League, Men's Union, and the editor of the Green and White.

Dean Voigt was recently cited for her twenty-five years of service by the National Association of Deans of Women at its annual convention in Cleveland.

The picture below was taken at the reception in the ballroom of the Men's Union. In the upper corner is the dean as she appeared in 1913, newly-arrived with her Ph.D. from the University of Illinois.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1913—How well I remember my arrival in Athens on the 1 p.m. B. & O. from the West! I was hot, dusty, and tired, but most of all utterly strange, for not only was I entering upon my first position as Dean of Women, but I was about to become Ohio University's first Dean of Women. None of the faculty had yet arrived. President Ellis's greeting, although friendly in intention added to my feeling of strangeness and homesickness, for this was my birthday—the first one away from my family. He said, "Well, Miss Voigt, you're here now; I don't know what a Dean of Women's for, and I suspect you don't know what you're to do. Get busy and find out." I swallowed hard, smiled wanly, and hiked out to East Hill alone. The next day I started to work—alone!

September 1, 1938—How well I remember that day also! My staff composed of a receptionist, a private secretary, two heads of hall and assistant directors of personnel, three N.Y. A. students, one secretary of absence records with two assistants, one part-time student assistant stenographer and filing clerk, five fellows beginning their work for a master's degree as graduate student deans—all these were busy at work. I was dizzy and busy—parents, new students, committee meetings, Senior Women's Council, Faculty Advisory Council, personnel records, scheduling, housing, telephoning, preparing for freshman week and buzzing around with the last details of opening a new addition to Howard Hall. The twenty-fifth year seemed a far cry from the first year.

To anyone who has had the privilege to work on a college campus during these twenty-five years, in many ways comprising one of the most significant eras in the history of Ohio University as well as the country at large, there is both a satisfaction in looking back and a challenge in looking forward. What has happened during these years? We have suffered through a World War with its aftermath of changed political ideologies; we have attempted to reorganize and rehabilitate the lives of individuals and families depleted not only by the ravages of war but by the inroads of a terrific "flu" epidemic; we have experienced post war inflation in both spiritual and material areas; we have seen the rise and fall of prohibition; we have touched the depths of depression and recession; we have begun the world struggle for social security; we have emerged from the last remnants of Victorian convention into startling self expression, often crass and untamed; we have closed the door on the schoolroom of formal discipline and have crossed the threshold of the progressive school.

From 1913 to 1938, what stands out at Ohio University as significant bits of history? The enrollment of women has increased from 350 to 1320. The ratio of men to women has changed from three women to two men to one and a third men to one woman. West Wing has changed from a sorority hall, housing thirteen groups, to the department of personnel of the women's division. The number of sororities has been reduced to eight from a maximum of eighteen; now these sororities live in their own homes. The stately waltz and frolicking one-step have given way in turn to the grapevine, the fox trot, the charleston, the blackbottom, the big apple, the lambeth, and the jitterbug! The full glare of the ballroom lighting at one time changed to almost total darkness — it is now emerging once again and is in the twilight stage. Even dress lengths have varied with the years — as well as hair lengths.

Academically and organizationally, Ohio University has undergone several major changes. A steady building up of its scholarship standards has brought Kappa Delta Pi, A.A.U.W., Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma, and Mortar Board. From two colleges, through reorganization and additions, there have come to be seven colleges: plus five schools: journalism, home economics, music, speech and dramatic Editorial Comment . . .

IN THE several replies to the invitation for comments on Fortune Magazine's poll question, "Which do you think has a better chance of earning a living today — a high school graduate who has had four years of experience, or a man just out of college?" no one attempted to answer the question directly, but all, in one way or another, rallied to the defense of higher education. One alumnus wrote as follows:

"It is my belief that a college education (not including professional training) and financial success are not so much cause and effect as they are two different effects from the same causes. In other words, the same things that cause a person to attend college and complete the course—social class, financial ability, mental equipment, good health, ambition, perseverance, etc.—operate to bring financial success later.

"Incidentally, in the article that you reprinted, I dislike the implication that the filling station attendant is such a failure. He is earning an honest living, something that some of the 'successful' men may not be doing. And for all we know, he may be a great success in home life, in character, in contentment, or in other ways."

Turning from Fortune's question to some facts gleaned from an interesting volume entitled "Life Earnings in Selected Occupations in the United States," by Harold F. Clark, we find that men and women in the "professions" are faring much better, as far as income is concerned, than their brothers and sisters in other fields. Since a college education is now an almost universal prerequisite for admission to the professions, one would have to conclude that from the hard, practical, bread and butter viewpoint — and that is the viewpoint of the Fortune poll — a college education is no handicap.

Dr. Clark, professor of educational economics at Columbia University, is a researcher with an international reputation. In this and several foreign countries he has conducted surveys to bring to light such significant facts as "the effect of population upon ability to support education," "the cost of government and the support of education," and "the economic effects of education."

In his book mentioned in a previous paragraph, Dr. Clark compares income figures for a number of professions and occupations. The basis for his comparisons is life earnings rather than hourly or weekly wages.

Taking the figure for average lifetime earning, $160,100, for college teaching as an index number of 100, the following are the indexes for some other callings named in his book: farm laborer, 15; farmer, 18; unskilled laborer, 21; nurse, 25; skilled worker, 39; public school teacher, 44; minister, 54; librarian, 59; reporter, 62; social worker, 74; architect, 128; dentist, 135; lawyer, 145; engineer, 148; physician, 149.

From these figures it will be noted that the farm laborer works a decade to earn what the physician receives in one year.

The Columbia economist suggests as one means of equalizing opportunities that adequate vocational information should be available to all, that preparation for the professions should be free and that more persons should enter the highly paid professions until demand and supply can operate to reduce the present differences in earnings.

In discussing the "liberal" aspects of the training of young people for industry, as opposed to the strictly vocational, Ralph H. Tapscott, president of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York says: "Clearly, the function of our higher institutions is to fit young men and young women for living as well as for earning a living....

"Schools are admirably fitted to a painstaking and firm grounding of their students in the never changing fundamentals common alike to engineering and economics, the theory of government and, through expression, the arts. Limitations of time and money and a relative remoteness from the current actualities of a highly involved world make it quite impossible that these same schools can impart utilitarian training nearly so well as life itself will do after the youngsters are graduated.

"I believe that employers generally are patient and willing to let specific knowledge and specific skills develop with the years, if only young people bring from the college those important things which the schools can and do develop. Certainly, for my own part, I would rather that any alumnus coming into my business should learn at first hand from the business itself and, according to each day's change in emphasis, adopt from day to day the specific facts on which his processes must rest themselves."

DO NOT read this if you have sent in your alumni membership for the current year. If you haven't, won't you please do so soon so that the printer, the engraver, and other association creditors may have their faith in us renewed. Otherwise, we'll have to continue those friendly — but relatively expensive — little reminders by mail.

On and About the Campus . . .

IN 1933, Dr. C. E. Cooper, professor of geography and geology, made application to the Federal Government for a study of the soil in Athens county. Recently the Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils in cooperation with the Ohio Agriculture Experiment Station at Wooster, released a 39-page "Soil Survey of Athens County" that has great value for rural residents of this region. Three men from the Wooster station visited each ten acres of the county, examining, classifying, and mapping the soil. Borings were made and samples were tested with chemicals.

A FORUM, open to business men of Athens and Southeastern Ohio, sponsored by Beta Psi, honorary accounting fraternity (local) at Ohio University, will be held on March 27, "Income Taxation and Social Security," "Budgeting Control and Profit Planning," "The Accountant's Responsibility in Small Business Firms" are the subjects that will receive chief consideration at the hands of experts invited to the campus for the day.

A CONFERENCE on the fine arts lead by Dr. John Erskine, well-known author, and an educational conference directed by officers of the state department of education will be two of the features of the coming summer session which will open on June 12. Fifteen visiting lecturers and four supervising critics from other schools will replace faculty members on leave during the summer. During the post summer session students enrolling in Botany will spend the entire time at Buckeye Lake. Geography students will take another three weeks' field trip. Early in the regular session Dean Voigt will conduct a non-credit course for deans and advisers of women.

THE ANNUAL home concert of the women's glee club, under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Benedict, was held in Alumni Memorial Auditorium on Sunday, March 19. The men's glee club, assisted by the variety quartet, will present its annual concert in the Auditorium on March 26. Prof. Philip L. Peterson is director of the men's groups.

REV. William H. Hudnut, Jr., of Cincinnati, addressed a recent mass meeting of students and conducted two seminars in a "Religious Emphasis Program." Dr. Hudnut was assisted by local church workers and Y.W.C.A. officers.

IN AN EFFORT to definitely locate the one-time home of President William Holmes McGuffey in Athens, W. E. Peters, local attorney and compiler of the "Legal History of Ohio University," has studied real estate and court records and talked with many old residents. The results of his research are embodied in the pen sketch shown in the center of the page. The corner is that now occupied by the Beckley Block on Court and Union Streets. The McGuffey home is the middle structure. The log cabin, a corner of which is shown at the right, was the original Athens county court house. It was sold to Dr. Eliphaz Perkins, a trustee of the University, who had it moved from the present court house location to the site now occupied by the former O'Blens home. According to Mr. Peters, memory supplied the porch designs, the picket fence, the spacing of the houses, and the wide sidewalks.

A BILL introduced by State Senator H. T. Phillips, '99x, and passed by both houses of the state legislature, makes possible a saving of thousands of dollars a year in interest cost on funds borrowed by state-supported universities in Ohio for the construction of dormitories. Refunding of notes at Ohio University will mean a saving of $5,000 a year.

FIVE hundred thirty-seven paid admissions (couples) were reported for the Junior Prom on March 3. These persons, with some 40 guests of the prom committee, made up the largest crowd ever to attend a social function at Ohio University. Marjorie Helman, Cleveland Heights sophomore, was chosen to reign as queen over the prom. Her consort, the prom king, was Henry Pattison, a Cleveland senior.

SPRING initiations over, fraternities and sororities have now added a total of 171 men and women to their rosters of "actives," an increase of 26 over last year's figure. Sixty-nine girls were initiated into the mysteries of the sororities, while the fraternities placed pins upon 102 men. Records in the offices of the deans of women and men show that there are 458 fraternity men (actives and pledges) on the campus this year, as compared with 475 Greek letter men last year, a decrease of 17. There are 282 cords now associated with the social groups, as compared with 310 affiliates last year, a decrease of 28. Approximately 23% of the students on the campus this year have fraternity or sorority connections.

THE SOUND of hammer, saw, and hoisting engine attract attention to three scenes of activity these days. Lindley Hall is getting a new wing, a new section is being added to what will ultimately be the men's dormitory quadrangle, and Carnegie Hall is being remodeled almost from the ground up. Besides this strictly university construction, additions are being made to the Athens High School building and the East Side and West Side Elementary Schools.

Young Engineer Has Responsible Position on Gigantic Project

Only calculators of the national debt, construction engineers, and Andrew H. Brown are accustomed to dealing in such sizeable figures as those involved in the following account of the activities of Emlin J. Wanless, '31x, of the U.S. Engineers Office, in Denison, Texas.

E. J. Wanless

In a letter to E. H. Gaylord, associate professor of civil engineering, Engineer Wanless tells of his association with a $65,000,000 flood control and power project, Concha Dam, about seventy-five miles north of Dallas. He is in complete charge of the following engineering phases—design, structural, mechanical, electrical, hydrological, and hydraulics—and at present has a force of approximately 125 engineers working under him.

The dam for the project, a rolled fill job, will be 180 feet high, with an overall length of approximately nine miles. It will be the biggest dam of its type in the world, requiring 40,000,000 yards of dirt and 1,000,000 yards of concrete. To divert the present water course during construction, nine tunnels, each twenty feet in diameter and 3,000 feet long, are being employed. The power house will be equipped with four 50,000 K.W. generators to be run by water from a basin with a storage capacity of 18,000,000 acre feet.

The picture used with this story was taken ten years ago when Mr. Wanless was an undergraduate.

D. A. R. Plaque To Mark Cutler Hall

The Ohio Daughters of the American Revolution at their recent convention in Toledo, chose Ohio University's Cutler Hall as the historic site or structure to be marked by a bronze plaque within the next year.

The Cutler Hall proposal was one of 12 considered by the committee on historic sites, of which Mrs. Russell W. Finsterwald (Lucille Henry, '17), Athens, is vice-chairman. Strong support to the proposed local recognition was also given by Mrs. O. D. Dailey (Jane Dowd, '13), Albany, state historian.

Cutler Hall was selected because of its significant place in the history of higher education in the Northwest Territory, and because Manasseh Cutler, a co-founder of Ohio University, was a zealous patriot and a chaplain in the Revolutionary War.

Sixteen Included Among Celebrities

Among the names of 31,545 Americans listed in the current edition of "Who's Who in America" are those of 16 Athens residents, all of whom are, or have been, connected with Ohio University.

These persons are A. H. Armbruster, dean of the College of Commerce; A. A. Atkinson, retired dean of the College of Applied Science; Dr. W. B. Bentley, retired professor of chemistry; Dr. E. W. Chubb, retired dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Dr. W. F. Copeland, professor of agriculture; Dr. W. S. Gamertsfelder, dean of the Graduate College and of the College of Arts and Sciences; Dr. J. A. Hess, professor of German; Dr. Herman G. James, president; Dr. T. C. McCracken, provost and dean of the College of Education; Dr. R. L. Morton, professor of education; Dr. J. P. Porter, professor of psychology; Dr. E. B. Smith, professor of government; Dr. C. W. Super, former president; Dr. Irma E. Voigt, dean of women; Dr. A. T. Volwiler, professor of history; and Dr. H. R. Wilson, professor of English.

Grover To Head Coaches Group

B. T. Grover, '19, director of public relations and advisory coach of basketball at Ohio University for the past year, was elected president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, March 25, at the association's convention in Chicago. Mr. Grover retired from active coaching last year to accept his present position.

Peter Grant Erred in Broadcast

On Sunday, March 5, Peter Grant, news commentator for WLW, Cincinnati, stated that an investigation was being conducted at Ohio University relative to subverse activities.

The "Red" investigation that he had in mind was then in progress at Ohio State University, but his frequent reference to Ohio University, omitting the word "State," was most unfortunate and misleading. A correction in a newscast later in the day served, to a degree, to rectify the unwelcome and erroneous statement.

Widow of Late President Dies At Her Upper Arlington Home

Mrs. Margaret Scott Bryan, widow of Dr. Elmer Burritt Bryan, former president of Ohio University, died at her home in Upper Arlington (Columbus) March 2.

Apparently recovered from a serious illness of two years ago, it is believed that Mrs. Bryan was stricken by a sudden heart attack. Residing with her in the home was a daughter, Mrs. Florence Belcher.

Besides Mrs. Belcher, Mrs. Bryan leaves another daughter, Mrs. Chester Sater, of Summit, N. J., and a son, Julian Bryan, of Pelham Manor, N. Y.

A funeral service in the First Methodist Church, Athens, was followed by the interment, beside President Bryan, in the West Union Street Cemetery.

Mothers' Week-End, April 28-30

Numerous committees are hard at work planning the program for the 14th annual Mothers' Week-End which will be observed on the campus April 28-30.

For the first time an attempt will be made to get mothers of the men as well as of the women to attend. Previously only mothers of the women students have been encouraged to come to the campus because the program was built around the extra-curricular activities of the co-eds.

art, and painting and allied arts; plus three separate departments: R.O.T.C., health service, and physical welfare. The University College is a unique experiment, entered upon by Ohio University in 1935. Ohio University is also attempting to fall in line with rather widespread demands for a general education not leading to a degree. The elective course is an extension of University College offerings. An extension center, known as the Portsmouth Division of Ohio University is the most recent attempt to meet public needs.

The one unchanging factor through the years has been the constant challenge of youth and my joy in serving them. The friendly atmosphere of Ohio University has not changed essentially among its finer spirits. The loyalty of its sons and daughters extends over the years with the same warmth and enthusiasm. The name of Ohio University is the precious possession of all who read the name on their "sheep skin."

Ohio University Teams Sweep Championship Boards in Debate

To Loren C. Staats, '26, A. M. '31, associate professor of dramatic art and speech, and debate and oratory coach at Ohio University, state championships are fast losing their novelty, becoming merely honors to be taken in stride.

During the past eight years women orators that he has coached have won five state titles, have twice finished second, and placed third once. Two years ago an Ohio University man won the state oratory championship, and another has been runner-up in the men's event.

In debate, three of Coach Staats' women's teams have been awarded the laurels of state-wide success, while his men have won two co-championships and one outright title. On three other occasions the girls were runners-up to the title winners.

This year, to add to the variety of the success pattern, both the men's and women's debate teams won silver cups emblematic of top standing in their respective state tournaments.

In the accompanying picture are the two 1939 championship squads. Prof. Staats is easily distinguished in the women's group. In the lower picture he is the man immediately behind the cup.

Wisconsin President to Speak

Acceptance of an invitation to deliver the June, 1939 Commencement address at Ohio University has been received by President James from Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin.

President Dykstra is the holder of many honorary degrees, and has taught at Ohio State University, the University of Kansas, and the University of California. He was city manager of Cincinnati for seven years prior to accepting the Wisconsin post.

Besides his work in educational administration, Dr. Dykstra is currently president of the National Municipal League, and president of the

Ohio University's Championship Debate Teams

American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Galloping Teas Prove Popular With Youngstown Women's Group

Reference is made elsewhere to the "Galloping Teas" that are so much enjoyed by members of the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown.

The editor can think of no better description of these informal social events than that provided by Mrs. Walter H. Heller (Thora Carlson, '21, 2-yr.) in a letter to her friend, Geraldine C. Hope, '22 2-yr., of the Alumni Office staff.

Writes Mrs. Heller: "We are trying something different for the Student Loan Fund this year. We are having 'Galloping Teas.' A group comes galloping in on you some evening without warning. You are not allowed to change your clothes, and you have to serve just what you have in the house. Each girl pays 25¢. The teas also serve as 'get-acquainted' parties.

Miami University Dean Engaged In Editing Shaftesbury Edition

After a very active undergraduate career, William Elijah Alderman (see front cover) graduated from Ohio University in 1909 with a Ph. B. degree. By the end of the following year he had earned an A. M. degree at Hiram College. Then ensued two years of study at Harvard University, after which he became an instructor in English at the University of Wisconsin, in 1914. He remained in Madison until 1920, when he received his Ph. D. degree.

From the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Alderman went to Beloit College, Beloit, Wis., to become professor of English, and later, in 1925, dean of the college and dean of men.

In 1935, he came back to his native Ohio to accept a position as dean of the College of Liberal Arts, professor of English, and chairman of the department of English, at Miami University, his present location.

Dean Alderman has held many positions of honor, among them the presidency of the National Association of Deans and Advisers of Men, the presidency of the Association of Presidents and Deans of Wisconsin Colleges, and the vice-presidency of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters. In addition to these he has held membership in the Modern Language Association, the Shakespeare Society of America, Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Kappa Tau.

Like every administrator who is at heart a scholar, the Miami dean yearns for more time to devote to study and writing. At present he is working on what is planned as a complete, five-volume edition of the works of Shaftesbury. He is in frequent demand as a lecturer, and is a contributor to numerous literary journals.

Dean Alderman married Miss Wilhelmina Boelzner, '11, of Athens, in 1912, and is the father of four children: Barbara, Jane, Eleanor, and William, Jr.

tend a committee meeting. Before we got our meeting started the President came 'galloping' in with about 10 girls. We played bridge and anagrams. 'White elephants' were used for prizes. We had a lot of fun."

Swimmers Show Improvement, Wrestlers Revive Interest, and Baseball Takes the Spotlight

By DANA P. KELLY

NOW is the time when balmy breezes and training camp reports turn all good sports fans to the great out-of-doors sports once again, but just to prove that we are as unpredictable as Athens weather, we're pausing to take one last backward look at the winter sport season.

Probably the most interesting feature of the winter was the improved showing of the Bobcat swimming team which set a new record for wins in a single season by taking four decisions. The Ohio University swimming records show what it is to come up the hard way in sports. In this, the fourth year, of swimming competition, the Bobcats, as mentioned previously, won four victories. Last year the record was three wins, the year previous, two wins. The Bobcats started splashing in inter-collegiate competition back in the season of 1935-1936 and wound up the initial season with a lone win. In each succeeding season, however, the mer-men have set a new school win record, and Coach Jack Rhoads states that next season's team should be the best in Ohio U. history.

With but two varsity men ending their pool careers this season, and a group of outstanding freshmen coming up, Coach Rhoads feels that his Bobcat swimmers should make a very creditable showing against some outstanding pool squads tentatively lined up for the 1939-1940 season.

Looking back again at the winter sports we recall some of the thrilling moments of the recent cage season—the 77 point Bobcat scoring spree against the favored Toledo Rockets and the great scoring duel in that game between Frankie Baumholtz, Jimmy Snyder and the Rocket Great, Chuck Chuckovitz, when these three men scored a total of 60 points for an average of twenty points per man. Then, too, the thrill of watching Frankie Baumholtz drop those one-handed push shots in from all points of the court helped to counteract the loss of four Conference games.

We have nothing but praise for Dutch Trautwein and his boys. By the middle of the basketball season an untried group of sophomores had made themselves one of the really important cage quintets in the state, and by their great reputation in the early season games the Bobcats were "the team to beat" for state prominence. Consequently, the Bobcat cagers found that their opponents were pointing for the Ohio U. games all during the latter part of the season. In basketball, as in swimming, we derive much pleasure in contemplation of next season, for we really think that Dutch will build a great quintet for the coming hardwood season.

The past winter saw the growth of student interest in a sport that is rapidly becoming prominent in intercollegiate circles—we refer to that very ancient sport of wrestling. This winter Athenians and students took wrestling very seriously and there were close to a thousand spectators in attendance at several of the grappling matches.

The great interest in wrestling on the campus this year is undoubtedly due to the hard work and enthusiasm of Thor Olson, who has succeeded in making wrestling at Ohio University a most colorful and exciting sport. Thor's boys turned in another nice performance this winter and even though the genial wrestling mentor loses Chet Adams and Clarence Claugus, two of his standout performers, we'll wager that the Bobcat grapplers will be plenty tough again next season.

To get back to those spring sports we mentioned earlier, we wouldn't be surprised if Don Peden and his diamond men cut themselves a huge chunk of baseball glory this spring. From the team's early workouts it appears that Don will have a formidable nine. One thing the Bobcats should have is hitting power. Last season's nine fell down in this department, but from all indications the team this spring will have four or five real sluggers in the lineup.

If Don can replace Bill Jurkovic behind the bat, and find some outstanding hurlers, his team should go places. Three veterans from last season will probably bear the pitching burden. Goose Gander, Ralph Frey, and Johnny "Lefty" Maiden, are the returning hurlers, and it is on their shoulders that this season's prospects rest.

Ernie Havrilla, veteran third baseman, will probably be shifted to the first base spot, with Jimmy Snyder, Bobcat grid and cage star, a likely candidate for the hot corner. At short and second base there is a wide open race with Dorwin Peer, Irving Olsen, and Thomas Carroll, a sophomore, all having a shot at the two keystone positions. In the outfield, Fred Novak, Chuck Coen, and Frankie Baumholtz seem to have the inside tracks. Behind the bat, Ray Farroni, husky Cleveland Heights boy, Johnny Montgomery, and Paul Swaykus, are staging a battle for the first string catching job.

The schedule opens with a training trip through North and South Carolina. The first activity on the home lot will involve Ohio State's nine, on April 11.

THE FORMATION of a new Ohio collegiate athletic conference to replace the old Buckeye loop is a virtual certainty, according to George Gauthier, athletic director at Ohio Wesleyan and secretary of the Buckeye league. Any new alignment of schools is at least a year or two away, however, in the belief of the Wesleyan director. Don Peden also believes there will be a new loop some day but refuses to predict its membership.

Here and There Among the Alumni

HENRY H. ECCLES, '15, Portsmouth, auditor of Scioto county since 1932 and former principal of Portsmouth High School, has enrolled in Ohio State University for post-graduate work with a view to returning to public school administration.

Tappan, a village in Harrison county over 150 years old, will soon be only a memory, the town site submerged under 10 to 30 feet of water. Progress in the form of a dam for the Muskingum watershed conservancy project will cause the obliteration. In an article appearing in a recent issue of the Steubenville Herald-Star, a writer mentioned a large number of natives of Tappan who have distinguished themselves since leaving the home community. Among these were PROF. CHARLES M. COPELAND, '96, former head of Ohio University's College of Commerce, now retired; DR. W. FRANK COPELAND, '02, professor of agriculture at his alma mater; and the late JUDGE L. G. WORSTELL, '88, of Athens.

FRANCIS W. KESSLER, '38, business manager last year of the Green and White, is now paymaster for Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., a chain of eight Ohio newspapers and one radio station.

State headquarters of the National Youth Administration in Ohio announced last month the appointment of GEORGE W. STUART, '24, as director of the new work experience center in Newton Falls. Mr. Stuart has held high school principalships in Crooksville, Delaware, and Toronto, Ohio.

At the recent meeting of school administrators in Cleveland, FRANK C. RANDELL, '19, Kenton, superintendent of the Hardin county schools, was appointed to the important executive committee of the department of rural education of the National Education Association. Supt. Ransdell is the husband of the former Miss FLOSSIE YOUNG, '16, 2-yr., and the father of MARTHA RANDELL, who will graduate from Ohio University in June with high scholastic honors.

Thirty-two years ago, on March 13, Athens was swept by the most disastrous flood in its history. Six persons were drowned and thousands of dollars of property damage was incurred. Carnegie Hero Medals were awarded to 14 Athens men — one of them, WALTER O. ALLEN, '10, then a student at Ohio University — for acts of heroism associated with rescue work. The Alumni Secretary remembers as vividly as though they were but events of yesterday, some of the thrilling and tragic scenes of that day thirty-two years ago. Hero Allen is now principal of Washington Irving Junior High School, Des Moines, Iowa.

Death, during recent weeks, has claimed two mothers and a father of Ohio University alumni. The former were Mrs. Hettie Chapple, aged 82, mother of Mrs. R. D. EVANS (MARY CHAPPLE, '09), Akron, and Mrs. Metta Selby Glazier, aged 73, mother of SELBY GLAZIER, '11, 2-yr., and CLIFFORD GLAZIER, '23, both of Amesville. The latter was Milton E. TWISS, owner of the Home Furnishing Co., Athens, and father of Mrs. W. E. LUCAS (MARY JO TWISS, '36), Cleveland.

HOWARD H. SANDS, '22, instructor in the junior high school at Logan and former head of the Haydenville schools, has been appointed manager of the Logan office of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation Commission. RUSSELL R. DUPLER, '28, teacher in an adult education project in Logan was appointed to the position of junior interviewer for the U. C. C.

The smiling young lady in the center of the page is HOPE MCCLAFLIN, '31, who holds a clerical position in the United States Embassy at Habana, Cuba. In response to a query from the Alumni Secretary, Miss McClafin wrote: "In July, while I was visiting a friend in Habana (on vacation from my duties as commercial instructor in Amherst, Ohio) I learned that there was a vacancy in the Embassy for a clerk and that a local appointment would be made. I applied, and here I am enjoying the sunshine and the climate which is too wonderful to be true."

Hope McClafin

In an article, illustrated with water color sketches and bearing the title "Arcadia in Iron," appearing in the March issue of Fortune Magazine, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Jones (KATHERINE MCKEE, '27), Jackson, were prominently mentioned in connection with the unique management of the Globe Iron Works, which has been owned by four generations of the Jones family. The Globe works is the largest producer of "silvery" iron in the United States.

HOMER R. COTTERMAN, '22, associate professor of education at Capital University, Columbus, and husband of the former Miss ISABELLE KISTLER, '26x, has but little time to spend with his family it would seem. He is president of the Columbus Cooperative Club, of which "BOR" RUCKER, '14, and FRANK H. PALMER, '12, are also members. Besides his work in the service club, he has averaged about two out-of-town appearances a week as a speaker before civic, church, and school groups since last September.

Trustees of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at their meeting last October, elected JOHN M. HENRY, '13, professor of commerce and finance, to be assistant treasurer and business manager of the college. Prof. Henry had borne the added responsibilities of the business office since the preceding May when the incumbent, Mr. S. N. Harris, retired. His teaching load has been reduced in view of the new duties.

MICHAEL C. KREIDER, '30, has arrived in Athens to assume his new duties as supervisor of the Southeastern Ohio training area of Child Welfare Services. Mr. Kreider will work in conjunction with Ohio University's department of sociology under a plan whereby students of child welfare work and rural sociology will be given training in field and case work carried on by state agencies. He reports that the plan of cooperation between the university and the state and county agencies is unique in American social work, having no exact parallel anywhere in the country.

The probability, reported in the February ALUMNIUS, that former State Senator VERNER E. METCALF, '17x, Manetta, would be named chairman of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation Commission, has now become fact. WALTER J. MACKIEY, '24, Canton, a member of a previous board of a similar character, is a colleague of Mr. Metcalf's on the new three-member commission.

MARY ELEANOR MORTON, '36, daughter of DR. R. L. MORTON, '13, and Mrs. Morton (JEAN ADAMS, '14), Athens, is studying fashion modeling at the Mallon-Friel Studios in New York City.

GRACE L. SHERMAN, '19, a high school instructor in Santa Cruz, Calif., reports that she has already paid two visits to the Golden Gate Exposition at San Francisco, and expects to make a dozen more before it ends. She saw and talked with "Wrong Way" Corrigan on the opening day of the exposition. And, by the way, Miss Sherman hopes that O. U. folks who visit the fair will make a side trip (only about 30 miles) to Santa Cruz.

In language too highly technical for a mere alumni secretary to grasp, DR. JOSEPHUS T. ULLOM, '98, prominent Philadelphia physician residing in the historic Germantown section of the city, reports, in last month's Medical Times, his study of one of mankind's most dreaded ailments. The report carries the title "Coronary Thrombosis — With and Without the Electrocardiogram." The editor of THE OHIO ALUMNIUS regrets that he is not equal to preparing a satisfactory review of this valuable study and the conclusions drawn from it. Doctor Ulloa is a former national president of the Ohio University Alumni Association.

C. E. "SCOOP" VAN SICKLE, '22, formerly sales manager for the International Harvester Export Company in Manila, P. I., has been transferred to Hong Kong, China, where he is now located at 67-69 Des Voeux Road C, Hong Kong.

FIRST LIEUT. F. R. BRICKLES, '30x, was well pleased when the rifle team of Co. K, 132nd Inf., Illinois National Guard, which he coached, ranked first in marksmanship among all National Guard teams in the United States this year. Lieut. Brickles is connected with the U. S. Treasury Department as a field agent in the Income Tax Division.

JOHN R. WHITING, '36, New York City, editor of Your Life magazine, made Walter Winchell's column on March 13 by saying that it was Oscar Wilde who once joshed all of us in this manner — "America has been discovered before, but it has always been hushed up."

ALEXANDER C. "ALEC" KERR, '16, European general manager of Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc., owners of the Southern States Line, had hoped to return to the United States for a visit last year but the unsettled situation abroad kept him at his post. Deferred plans seem even further from realization this year because of the increasing tenseness in European affairs. On March 2 Mr. Kerr wrote: "I feel that at least the immediate future is not going to bring us the terrible catastrophe of war over here, although the situation is terrible and there are serious issues that must be settled. No one can see very far ahead and the main thing to do today is to hold fast to your faith that truth and righteousness will prevail, and remember that man is finite . . . Well, there is a limited time for philosophy when I have a steamer in the Bay of Biscay with a broken tailshaft and a lost propeller."

T. L. YOUNG, '95, manager of the South Side Water Works Co., Chester, W. Va., has been elected president of a new section of the American Water Works Association. His daughter, HELEN YOUNG, '29, has recently returned from a several months' visit to the Caribbean countries. Two months of her time were spent in San Jose, Costa Rica, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Klippert (ANN RIDENOUR, '29). Mr. Klippert is Central American manager of the Goodyear Rubber Plantation Company.

A recent issue of the Gloucester Press contained this news note: "Shortly before Christmas, Valiant House, publishers, of New York City, took from their press a book entitled 'Important American Poets.' This anthology of current poetry was edited by Edith Warren and contains three poems — Enchantment, Goblin, Uncertainty — written by MISS MERLE DANFORD ['17], a member of the Gloucester High School faculty." At the behest of the editor of THE OHIO ALUMNUS, Miss Danford submitted the following short poem for publication:

A Whimsicality

Alone on a winter's evening—
There's a creaking of the door.
A face, yes, but let's pretend
I had my heart's desire;
And you stepped in upon my floor
And sat before my fire.

In an eight-inch, four-column feature story in the sports section of the Columbus Dispatch of March 19, FRANK B. GULLUM, '07, associate professor of chemistry at Ohio University, was presented as a famous, former football coach at East High School, Columbus, where between the years of 1908 and 1918, he turned out such All-Americans-To-Be as Ray Eichenlaub, Notre Dame, and "Chick" Harley, Ohio State. In 1914, Coach Gullum developed a practically point-a-minute gridiron team, his boys scoring 421 points in a total of 470 minutes played. John Vorys, now a member of Congress, was captain of this team and Harley the backfield "Ace." After coming to Ohio University in 1918, he coached football, basketball, and baseball at his alma mater for two years.

Among the world's more fortunate persons (those who can sojourn each winter in Florida) is Mrs. Marion A. Blake (VIRGINIA GIESEY, '17, 2-yr.) who has just returned to her home in Detroit after a winter in the Southland.

An appendectomy, followed by complications, took DAVE REECE, '32, out of circulation for more than two months last summer, but permitted him to resume his teaching in Roosevelt Junior High School, Hamilton, upon the opening of school in the fall.

HUGH M. CLIFTON, '30, whose attractive youngster is pictured on page 11, reports that he and Mrs. Clifton enjoyed a pleasant visit with CHARLES N. GAYLORD, '30, and his wife and young son, Charles, Jr., at Hampton, Va., recently. Mr. Gaylord, a brother of Edward H. Gaylord, associate professor of civil engineering, Ohio University, is a member of the engineering faculty of Hampton Institute.

BURTON MAYES, '39x, who will receive a degree from Ohio University in June, upon the completion of his first year in medical school, is making an enviable record for himself in Cornell Medical School, New York City. He is a son of Dr. HARRY W. MAYES, '08, Brooklyn obstetrician and gynecologist. Burton has two sisters at Ohio University, Helen and Ruth, both sophomores, one of whom plans a career in medicine and the other in medical technology. L. B. ECKARDT, A. M. '33, is a third-year student at Cornell Medical School.

ALBERT G. BERGENSEN, '37, who received a master of science degree at Syracuse University in February, is now vocational counselor with the N. Y. A. at Garden City, L. I. He is also attending Columbia University in the evenings, working for a degree of doctor of education. At Syracuse, Mr. Bergesen held a fellowship and was a fraternity resident adviser. He was a member of Phi Delta Kappa (honorary education fraternity), editor of the P. D. K. quarterly, and sang in the men's glee club and the university chorus.

There is good news out of North Africa to the effect that GLORA M. WYSNER, '23, superintendent of the Van Kirk Memorial Home for Kabyle girls at Il Maten (Constantine), Algeria, will leave her post soon for a furlough in the homeland. En route to the United States she will spend a few days in London with friends and then sail on the S. S. Queen Mary for New York. She has promised to visit the campus some time before June.

S. R. "BOB" BOBENMYER, '29, A. M. '33, besides being an instructor in social problems and speech in the Garfield Heights (Cleveland suburb) high school, is likewise a very successful wrestling coach. On January 5, he reported that "my team was the undefeated Cleveland district championship team last year, for we not only defeated all of the schools in our own conference but also the better, larger schools of the City of Cleveland. At this writing we are undefeated this year, and there remains only one more dual meet on our schedule. Spalding's Intercollegiate Wrestling Rules Book carries a picture of our team and a very nice little write-up."

FRANCES MARY WALSH, '32x, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. M. J. Walsh (LOUISE GILCHRIST), '18, Indiana, Pa., is a medical social worker at Harper Hospital, Detroit. Miss Walsh secured a master's degree at the University of Pittsburgh last year. Her father is a former member of the Ohio University faculty in the College of Education.

A regrettable editorial mishap is responsible for the delay in publishing information sent to the Alumni Office early last fall. At that time ALICE E. WALSH, '25, a teacher in St. Agnes School, Elyria, reported the death, Aug. 7, 1938, of her stepfather, Mr. Joseph Echle.

DR. KINSEY O. ENGLISH, '19, and Mrs. English (MARCELA RICHARDS, '22), of Chicago, have recently purchased from the successor to the Cullums' Studio, Athens, a beautiful, 36"x24" picture of the McGuffey Elms to grace the walls of the living room of their new home at 6800 N. Oriole Avenue. The picture is tinted in oils. Dr. English is a physician and surgeon.

Mrs. C. C. FOULK (MARIE VOIGT, '19), a sister of Ohio University's Dean of Women Irma E. Voigt, and her husband, who is vice-president of one of the old and soundly established banks in Flushing, N. Y., location of New York's World's Fair, are enjoying the thrill and pleasure of the new home at 390 Dogwood Lane, Manhasset, N. Y.

ROBERT M. BINGMAN, '38, well-known on the campus for his ability at the piano and organ, is associated with the Summers Music Company in a new store recently opened in Huntington, W. Va.

SOPHIE ELIKAN, '31, who received a master of arts degree from New York University last June, is director of physical education and adviser for social activities at the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 1560 Amsterdam Ave., New York City.

ANTHONY C. GRANT, '28, who has been a teacher in the high school at Loudonville since graduation from Ohio University, is now principal of his school. He received a master's degree at his alma later last August. The title of his thesis was "The Senatorial Career of Marcus A. Hanna." Mrs. Grant (JOSEPHINE EVANS, '28) is likewise a graduate of Ohio University.

HELEN E. BOYLES, '19, 2-yr., whose home is in North Lewisburg, has been engaged in educational work for the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Pyeung Yang, Korea, since 1926. Her sister, MARY BOYLES, '20, 2-yr., is an instructor in Woodward High School, Toledo. Another sister, ETHEL BOYLES, '13, resides at home where she is caring for her invalid mother.

HILDA JANI ELLIS, '36, formerly a teacher in the elementary schools of Martins Ferry, is now teaching English in the junior high school at Mingo Junction.

BIRTHS

Richard Raymond to FRANK E. McDADE, '30 and Mrs. McDade (OPAL CLUTTER, '30, 2-yr.), Logan, W. Va., Oct. 31, 1937. Mr. McDade is an instructor in the Logan Senior High School.

A son to KENNETH L. LOWMILLER, '34, and Mrs. Lowmiller, Millersburg, Ky., Dec. 17, 1937. Mr. Lowmiller is a coach and instructor in Central Hill High School, Bourbon County.

Ronald K. to DR. FRANK L. MOZDY, '31 and Mrs. Mozdy (BLANCHE L. KERN, '33x), 337 E. 11th St., Erie, Pa., March 1938. Doctor Mozdy is a physician.

David Earl to RUSSELL V. KELCH, '31, and Mrs. Kelch, R. F. D. 2, Canton, June 11, 1938. Mr. Kelch is an electrical engineer for the Ohio Power Co., in Canton.

Patricia Anne to W. MARION SCHAAL, '29, and Mrs. Schaal (WINIFRED PAHL, '32, 2-yr.), 581 W. Glendale Ave., Bedford, April 23, 1938. Mr. Schaal is an instructor in John Adams High School, Cleveland.

Janet Lynn to C. D. DAWSON, '35, and Mrs. Dawson, Carmel, Ind., Jan. 8, 1938. Mr. Dawson is a sales representative, for the State of Indiana, of the C. E. Ward Co., of New London, Ohio.

Neil Donovan to ELLSWORTH J. HOLDEN, '33, and Mrs. Holden (EVELYN UNDERWOOD, '31, A. M. '33), 3009 Maple-dale Avenue, Cleveland. Neil is the third child in the Holden household. Mr. Holden is an instructor and coach in James Ford Rhodes High School, Cleveland.

Daniel Charles to C. M. "MAC" BARTLETT, '33, and Mrs. Bartlett, 125 "A" St., S. W., Miami, Okla., March 13, 1939. Mr. Bartlett is associated with the editorial staff of the Miami News-Record.

Carolyn Louise to WILLIAM H. ROBERTS, '38x, and Mrs. Roberts (LOUISE BANKS), 2311 Kemper Lane, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Feb. 27, 1939. Mr. Roberts is associated with Sears Roebuck & Co., in the sports department.

John Harold, III, to JOHN H. "JACK" WOLFE, Jr., '32, and Mrs. Wolfe, Ironton, Feb. 22, 1939. Mr. Wolfe is manager of the Ironton-Russell Chevrolet Company.

A daughter to DAYTON E. SCHULTHEIS, '31, and Mrs. Schulteis, Logan, Mar. 11, 1939. Mr. Schulteis is a member of the Logan Senior High School faculty.

Sally to DR. W. E. HUDSON, '27, and Mrs. Hudson, 422 Second St., N. W., New Philadelphia, early in March, 1939. Dr. Hudson, a physician and surgeon, is also superintendent of the Tuscarawas County Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

John Patrick to Mr. and Mrs. P. F. KELLEY (MARGARET DEVLIN, '20x), 1593 Lincoln Rd., Columbus, Sept. 13, 1938. John Patrick has two sisters, Barbara Ann and Patricia.

Henry Obermanns to ROBERT W. WHITTIER, '32, and Mrs. Whittier, 201 Elmer Ave., Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1937. Mr. Whittier is a production clerk with the General Electric Co.

Charles T. to Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. LYNCH (MARLENE SCHICK, '30), 859 Colingwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., Sept., 1937. A daughter, Jellie May, is now past three years of age.

"Judy" (birth records say Judith) Clifton is the happy little mite on the tricycle whose picture appears in the center of the page. Judy, now a little past two years of age, is the daughter of HUGH M. CLIFTON, '30, and Mrs. Clifton, (ELINORE ORTON, '30, 2-yr.), Norfolk, Va. One of her playmates is Jane Little, daughter of Mrs. John O. Little (MORNA GUTHRIE, '24, 2-yr.), also of Norfolk. Judy's daddy is zone credit manager for the Pure Oil Company. Her mother was the first sponsor to be chosen by an Ohio University band.

DEATHS

DR. GLADWIN ANSON WOODWORTH, '20, aged 45, who until recently had practiced medicine and surgery in Niles, died March 11, 1939, at a hospital in San Antonio, Texas, of a heart attack. Although he had been in poor health since a fall several years ago, his condition was not serious and his death came as a sudden shock to his family and friends.

Dr. Woodworth graduated in medicine from Northwestern University and interned at Lake View Hospital, Chicago, and Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit. He was a member of the National Medical Board and rated in the upper ten of all those who took the National Medical Board tests in the United States. Among the survivors are his wife, the former Margaret Higby, '21, two brothers, and two sisters.

ROSELLA WOODRICH, '29, aged 38, a former teacher in the Oak Harbor schools and for the last nine years history instructor in Woodward High School, Toledo, died February 25 in Toledo Hospital. Death was attributed to pneumonia. Burial was made at Oak Harbor. Miss Woodrich is survived by her father, two brothers, and three sisters.

ROY T. McCURE, '04, 2-yr., aged 55, died March 16, 1939, as the result of gun shot wounds self-inflicted at the graves of his parents in Bloomingburg. Mr. McCure had been employed in the office of former State Treasurer Knisely, in Columbus, and for many years was president of the Peoples & Drivers' Bank, Washington C. H. The deceased was a member of the varsity baseball teams of his day.

MARRIAGES

BETTY LOPEL, '35, Winchester, teacher (Mansfield), to GEORGE F. RUTKOSIELE, '35, Athens, stock clerk, The McBe Co., June 11, 1938. At home: Roosevelt Dr., Athens.
